

Safety and Reporting

Last updated: June 2026

Your safety matters here. This policy explains how to protect yourself, how to deal with content or people that bother you, how to report problems, and how to get help. It works alongside the Community Rules, the Privacy Policy, and Roblox's own safety tools.

1. Keep your identity private

The single best way to stay safe is to keep your real-world identity private. Do not share your full name, age, address, school, workplace, phone number, email address, or other social accounts, and do not move conversations to other platforms where these Rules and Roblox's protections do not apply. Never share or ask for someone else's personal information.

2. Recognise and avoid risky behaviour

People online are not always who they say they are. Be cautious about anyone who pressures you, asks you to keep secrets, asks for personal information or images, offers gifts or deals that seem too good to be true, or tries to get you to leave the Forum to talk privately. If something feels wrong, it is okay to stop replying, block the person, and report it. You are never required to continue a conversation that makes you uncomfortable.

3. Reporting on the Forum

If you see content or behaviour that breaks the Community Rules or that makes you uncomfortable, use the Forum's report feature to flag it for our moderators. Tell us what happened as clearly as you can, and include where it happened on the Forum if you can. Reports help us act quickly, and you can report even if you are not sure. We would rather check.

4. Reporting to Roblox

Because this Forum runs on Roblox, you can also use Roblox's Report Abuse tools and safety features, which are available across the platform. Serious matters that involve a Roblox account, Roblox chat, or behaviour across the wider platform are best reported to Roblox as well as to us.

5. Blocking and managing interactions

Roblox lets you block other users at the platform level, which limits their ability to interact with you across Roblox. If someone is bothering you, blocking them is a quick and effective first step, alongside reporting. Where the Forum offers its own tools to mute or limit interactions, you can use those as well.

6. Emergencies and immediate danger

If you or someone else is in immediate danger, contact your local emergency services right away. Online reporting tools are not a substitute for emergency help. If you come across content that involves a credible threat of serious harm, or the sexual exploitation of a minor, report it to Roblox immediately using its Report Abuse tools so that it can be escalated to the appropriate authorities, and report it to us as well.

7. If you or someone you know is struggling

If you are going through a hard time, please know that you do not have to deal with it alone, and reaching out to a trusted adult, a friend, or a professional can help. The Forum does not allow content that encourages or promotes self-harm or suicide, and we may remove such content and reach out with supportive information. If you or someone else may be at immediate risk, contact your local emergency services or a local crisis helpline straight away.

8. What we do with reports

Our moderators review reports and take action under the Moderation and Appeals policy. We may remove content, restrict or ban accounts, and, where appropriate, refer matters to Roblox or to the relevant authorities. We take reports seriously, we do not tolerate retaliation against people who report in good faith, and we treat deliberately false reports as a breach of the Community Rules.

9. For parents and guardians

This Forum is intended for users who are 13 or older. Roblox provides parental controls and account settings that help you manage and supervise a young person's experience on the platform. If you have a concern about the Forum, you can contact us through the Forum's in-game support system.

10. Getting help

If you are unsure what to do, or you need help with something that happened on the Forum, reach out through the in-game support system and a member of staff will assist you.